Organization Narrative

For over 100 years, Schwabe, Williamson & Wyatt, P.C. has been one of the leading full service commercial law firms in the Pacific Northwest. Our attorneys advise many of the Northwest's leading businesses. In Washington, we have offices in Seattle and Vancouver. In Oregon, we have offices in Portland, Bend, Eugene, and Salem. We also have new locations in Mountain View, California and Anchorage, Alaska.

Our business attorneys have extensive expertise in corporate counseling, finance, real estate and land use, energy and utilities, environmental and natural resources, health care, labor relations, intellectual property, taxation and estate planning, forest products, securities, immigration, transportation, and governmental relations. Schwabe operates one of the largest trial departments of any firm in the region. Litigation practice areas include business, commercial, antitrust, professional malpractice defense, construction, product liability, maritime, employment, environmental and land use, intellectual property and patent, bankruptcy, insurance defense, condemnation, and appeals.

Attorneys at Schwabe actively participate in community activities, professional organizations and nonprofit services. Since 1993, the firm's Seattle office has sponsored and supported the Legal Action Center pro bono legal clinic through the Catholic Community Services of Western Washington, which provides nonprofit legal services for low-income clients.

New Associates typically assume a significant amount of early independence and responsibility. It is not unusual for new litigation associates to handle hearings, depositions, and assist with trials within their first two years, or for new business associates to work directly with clients. Associates are involved in firm management through participation on various committees. Schwabe provides an associate development program, including an individualized mentorship program and an associate retreat where associates learn about the firm and the practice of law with their peers in a relaxed environment. Schwabe reinvests in its future through continuing education. In-house seminars are taught by the firm's shareholders, senior associates, and outside professionals. Schwabe attorneys keep an open door, and associates are encouraged to take advantage of the years of experience of some of the most respected minds in the legal profession.

Schwabe devotes substantial resources to its Summer Associate Program. The program is carefully structured to allow summer associates the opportunity to develop their skills and get to know the firm. Whenever possible, summer associates are encouraged to attend depositions, trials, hearings, mediations, arbitrations, closings, client meetings and appellate arguments. Schwabe also provides social activities to allow the summer associates to interact with attorneys on an informal basis.

Client Service is a matter of highest priority for Schwabe. As a fundamental commitment to the firm and to one another, we strive to maintain a firm-wide culture and dedication to serving our clients in a manner designed to consistently exceed client expectations. This commitment permeates the firm and governs our actions and decisions.
